

WOLF®

ULTRABLOCK

This stainless steel functional and versatile rod rest is an excellent device for locking the rod in situations where the rod needs to be locked up and secure where the rod cannot move forwards when you get a run ie. close to snags etc. but enables the rod to be picked up easily. Can be used on banksticks, buzz bars and rod pods and can be adjusted for different diameter rods and different fishing situations. Ultrablocks are designed to ensure total safety and can be used with all sizes of rod butts, cork or duplon and can be used with the multi-angle lock and quick release.

The Ultrablock can be used for different fishing situations where the need for the rod to be locked up tight or easy to pick up. On the rear of the Ultrablock are two nuts which can be used to adjust the width or tightness of the Ultrablock heads. If you are using a thicker diameter rod butt or need a looser fit for your rod, the heads can be adjusted with a larger gap as shown. if you are using a narrow rod butt or need a tighter fit for locked up situations adjust the heads with a close fit. If you need a loose fitting for the Ultrablock for easy pick up of rod you can undo the two nuts on the rear so that the heads move easily but the Ultrablock will still stop the rod from moving forwards.

